Introduction

Il Follo is a producer of Prosecco established in 1960, owned and operated by the Follador family. The name is derived from the hamlet of Follo, nestled at the foot of the hill of Cartizze in the Valdobbiadene zone of Treviso near the eastern border of the Veneto.

More About This Producer

Introduced by the Romans, vines at Il Follo have been cultivated in Treviso for centuries. In 1772 a vine named Prosecco was first identified in the area. Until 2009, the vine and the wine were synonymous, but the grape variety is now referred to as Glera. They account for 85 percent of a Prosecco blend, and Verdiso, Perera, Bianchetta, Chardonnay and Pinot Grigio may alone or together account for the rest.

After many generations, Vittorio Follador and his son, Luca, share management of the estate.
